Early American explorer, William Keating wrote "The monotony of a prairie country impresses the traveler with a melancholy, which the sight of water and woods cannot fail to remove" in response to the open prairies and rolling hills of the uncultivated Great American Prairie in the heartland. The HH Vintage Collection offers a historic farm home to complete what we feel is a beautiful Midwest heartland setting.

Farmhouses were designed to work with open space and acreage. Originally, one room was built at a time, lived in and others were added as lifestyle required. For this reason, the Americana provides an open floor plan where life can simply overflow into the next activity.

LIFESTYLE CHARACTERISTICS

- Personal pampering can become a necessity in modern day. So, the farm house offers a great master suite with private bath and walk-in closet after a long day on the farm...or in the office.
- Detailed window panes give a genuine feel and abundant natural light.
- A solid wooden door invites company into the heart of the home.
- Pronounced porch through raised elevation gives the home a prominent stance on the acreage.
- Authentic-looking Hardi-plank exterior incorporates the modern day convenience of low maintenance.
